

- The Korean government operates a vaccine injury compensation system

- Submission of required documents is mandatory, such as a medical certificate, a death certificate (in the case of death), or a physician-issued diagnosis (for temporary disability compensation).

- The compensation procedure begins when a healthcare institution, the vaccinated individual, or their guardian reports an adverse reaction, either through the healthcare institution or online. Afterward, a compensation claim must be submitted to the local public health center. The application is then forwarded to the city or provincial governor for preliminary investigation, and subsequently submitted to the Korea Disease Control and Prevention Agency (KDCA) for final review.

- The scope of the compensation system has been expanded.

Figure S2. Images of the experimental group video (high construal level).